Subject: : Beginner Forum
Topic: : Fished the Little Lehigh today
Re: Fished the Little Lehigh today
Author: : djs12354
Date: : 2012/3/15 19:40:35
URL:

HI Bill

I was happy with the day. How was the crowd yesterday?

I guess I have been lucky with my fishing so far. I got to be on the Little Lehigh during a hatch and guess closely enough as to what they were to match what I chose to tie on the tippet and catch fish. They weren't even bothered much by my sloppy casting!
Pride doesn't come easy to me, I know I have a tremendous amount to learn and am slowly building my knowledge base.
Thanks to all the friends, Dan for getting me started, Ed for getting me casting better, George for cheering me on to my first fish on the fly (oooh, oooh) and all the people here on the PAFF forum who have been so encouraging and impart so much information to newbies like me.

Dave

Quote:

> whheff wrote:
> Hi Dave,
> You did pretty good yesterday. I was there today and there were not many fish caught. I saw 2 guys each catch 1 fish. I caught a little brown below the bridge and a big (16") sucker in the fast water below the walking bridge.
> The LL is were I started to fly fish and everyone told me if you can catch fish there you can catch them anywhere. So you should be proud of your fishing skills to catch fish on the LL.
> Bill