I am trying to be positive here. Have not gotten out near as much as i would like to. Lack of knowledge...!!!!!
I hear alot of people saying about going to a fly shop for information. Been there done that but left the shop with less information then i went in with. These guys don't seem to be very personable. Glad they don't need my money but someone will get it. shop is dead and still no time to talk to a beginner i guess. strike one for me.
Wish i knew what flies to use. I look to see what might be hatching, if there is a hatch and knowing the time of year and what fish should be biting on but best i can do is get close to what i see. And i'm a guy who went out and spend all that money to have alot of flies and sizes to choose from. Strike 2 for me.
took a beginners class at local fly shop. casting on ground is so much different than it is on the stream. Current speed and having current go from left to right/right to left and not sure how to get my fly line back up to where i need it. Strike 3.
Glad i just love being in the open waters to enjoy the peace and quiet. I will keep on plugging at it. Someday, it will all come together. I HOPE
