Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing
Topic: : Susquehanna spawning conditions
Re: Susquehanna spawning conditions
Author: : Woolybugger
Date: : 2008/6/4 0:29:11
URL:

So very true! I fish the Susquehanna all the time, it's my Nirvana. But how can you say the Allegheny is any better? I fish there also, and it stinks like a cesspool! Actually there are more people flushing their toilets in the Allegheny than the Susquehanna..... and more stupid farmers putting pig poop and urine on the fields that runoff to the water!
Overpopulation is the problem. All the rivers can never be as good as they were before! Every square foot of wilderness is bought by someone and a stinkin' house or strip mall is built on it!!
The multi-millions are flushing their toilets every nano second and tossing their trash out the window..... it all goes to the river!
I flyfish all the time, that's what I do, and I can see what the future has to offer us fishermen.
Enjoy while you can. Everywhere on our planet all fish species are in a major decline.
I also saltwater fish. It's enough to make you cry.
Oil has "peaked" and thank God for that!! When oil is $15 a gallon, we will be forced to use something else besides fossil fuels!
6.4 billion is too many, 9.2 billion is way too many!! We have to go back to "pre oil" days!! Less than 1 billion on this planet would be great for us fishermen.
WW3 just might be a good thing after all! Unless some of you educated folks can make a virus that will "eliminate" 90% of the worlds' population.
Sorry for being so truthful..... I'm a educated guy that loves to go fishing.