

Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : Steelhead flies

Re: Steelhead flies

Author: : tomgamber

Date: : 2009/8/19 11:32:34

URL:

Quote:

ryguyfi wrote:

Quote:

tomgamber wrote:

how much longer can it take to put a bead on a zug bug and make due? I'd try it before you write it off.

I think he meant the pattern in general. bead, lead, biot tail, tinsel, peacock, hackle, biot wing, finish..... takes me about 15-20 minutes a fly depending on whether I'm sitting down intently tying, or watching tv and tying. Just more in depth than a HE.

Takes me almost that long to tie a proper prince too. But it takes me half that to tie a zug bug with a bead head. Bead, herl, wire, throat, wing case, done. They are really close and I'm a shortcut kind of person.