Subject: : Fly Tying
Topic: : Advice on starting to tie my own
Re: Advice on starting to tie my own
Author: : Dcap240
Date: : 2013/7/2 17:44:46
URL:

I just bought a cabelas advanced tiers kit and I'm pretty happy with it. It was about $120. The vise is the worst thing in it. It is a cabelas master series vise which is ok and holds a hook and all but that's about it. I would imagine I'm going to upgrade that first(tool wise) as all the other tools in it are tiemco and seem pretty well made.(scissors, bobbin, hackle pliers, and whip finisher) most of the materials are good. It came with one pack of Metz grizzly dry fly hackle, which is about 6 three inch long feathers. Which is not much but it's something. There lower grade kit comes only with strung saddle hackle. Tiemco hooks assorted, UTC thread and a bunch of other decent materials. And it also comes with an instructional book with a few patterns step by step in it. I mean if you can afford it buying everything separate is the way to go as these guys have said. But for $120 it will get you started. I also bought some CDC, and micro fibets with it and there is a lot you can do with what they give you. These guys have way more experience than me with tying so like I said if you can afford it listen to them.