Please answer honestly regarding your level of commitment. It would be fairest to those who will commit to attend for them to have a greater voice.

If you can commit to at least one of the days, then you are absolutely committed to the weekend specified.

"Absolutely committed" should be an indication that only an emergency or disasterous weather will keep you away.

You can select more than one choice. If you can commit to one or more choice answer as many of the top three that work for you. If you can't commit, select as many of the bottom three that work for you or select only the one or ones that make it likely that you will attend.

David requested I add the last three choices to help the decision-making process. Unfortunately, it can only help with future voters as I cannot reset the poll unless I start a whole new one.
