The points raised are valid and I agree with them. Perhaps the thing to do is find out which of the weekends are preferred and then set a drop-dead date of Wednesday just before, for instance, to examine the available data and declare it a "go" or not. There are East Side streams that can be hit if the western streams are a bit high and also the lake itself which can be entertaining in its own right. The only way to be certain of ideal conditions is to make the decision hours before hitting the road.
