like i said i dont see a problem with the occasional harvest of a wild trout. the OCCASIONAL mind you.

In fact, groups like PETA often have more of a problem with C&R only people than they do with someone who eats what they catch.

shouldnt they have more of a problem with people raising trout in hatcheries just for harvest and for our enjoyment. isnt that what we do to chickens? raise them to kill them....i know they have a problem with chicken farms. better yet it is proven that plants can feel pain on some level. what about all that corn we grow? 😊

I'd rather have a hamburger, but i wouldn't want one everyday.

try the seasoned curley fries!
