

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Nymphing without indicators

Nymphing without indicators

Author: : thedude1534

Date: : 2007/5/17 10:34:05

URL:

As of now, I either use a yarn indicator, or a little indicator puddy when nymphing. I would like to start nymphing without an indicator, and was wondering if anyone had good tips on how to do that.

The one problem that I can instantly foresee is getting a line tight enough to sense a strike, but not destroy my drift. Ya'll got any tips?

Also, I assume that one of the best ways to nymph without an indicator is to czech nymph. In order to do this, do you just put a ton of weight on the line, so that you can drag the weight across the bottom, keeping a tight line, and your flies will dangle behind them?

Thanks in advance.