

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Nymphing without indicators

Re: Nymphing without indicators

Author: : tomgamber

Date: : 2007/5/17 14:26:31

URL:

Quote:

CaptMatt wrote:

Start by highsticking and using the end of the fly line as Tom said. If you high stick you do not need to shorten the leader.

The reason for shortening the leader is that when you high stick the flyline isn't always touching the water (unless you're fishing 9ft deep) and you are left only with feel as an indicator. (Some people have a problem detecting strikes that way) Shortening the leader puts the end of the fly line on the water as the indicator would be and you can see the strike when the fly line either pauses or moves.