As far as action, I've always heard it in terms of "slow" to "fast" for fly rods.

A fast rod loads quicker and can punch line through the wind easier. However, it's sometimes harder to cast (for some anyway). A slow rod takes its sweet time to load and is more noodly. I've got both slow and fast rods, and after a few minutes can easily fish with either type. I'd go cast some and see what you like.
