

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Leaders?

Re: Leaders?

Author: : dryflyguy

Date: : 2009/11/12 9:44:57

URL:

I also use the arbor knot to connect backing to spool.

I've been using braided loops ever since they came out, and have never had a problem with them.

However - after reading all the posts about most guys using a piece of mono with a loop, nail knotted to the fly line - I've been trying that for the last few years. And I can't really say that it's worked better for me.

In fact, just last month, I had a nail knot connection break on my 3 weight line. It cut thru the fly line. But maybe I just tied a bad knot.