

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Calling salt "fin"attics

Re: Calling salt "fin"attics

Author: : acristickid

Date: : 2009/11/15 11:03:33

URL:

Okay- I have some questions for you "fin" attics.

It seems to me as a neophyte saltwater fly fisher that Striped Bass are held in higher regard than false albocore- or as their called in Florida "little tunny". Why is that? Do they fight harder? They sure don't look prettier to me. Are they harder to catch? Is that they schooled up better?

Also- to fish for either of these species- Do you throw at the school? Into the bait fish? At the edges? Maybe this is somewhat self evident but I have never done this stuff so I have no idea.

Is this a needle in a haystack thing where you just hangout till you see baitfish?

Probably the more I think about this the more questions I have.