“Whether or not a fish's fins will grow back or not depends on how well the "clipper" completes his or her job. If it is done correctly the fish's fins will grow back within a matter of 3 -4 months.”

and

“Finally someone agrees with me that the fins can grow back. I'm sure its not true in all cases though but they can grow back.”

I don't know whether they grow back or not, and have an open mind on the question. Maybe I missed this in another thread, but why do you think the fins grow back? Have you read this somewhere, or do you have some observations or experience supports this idea?
