“I would guess that on most of the streams that you would encounter on these trails the fish you harvest would probably be the only ones this year taken.”

“If you are hiking into a stream more than a mile from access points, you will do very little, if any, harm to the stream if you take a handful of wild trout for your campfire.”

“Even when hiking a mile or more to fish - and I really think such a hike discourages almost all catch and keep types...”

A lot of people seem to think that if you hike back a mile or so that almost no one goes in there and harvests the wild trout. Boy, I wish that were true. It's not though. Not at all. Certainly not in the middle and north central areas anyway.
