I agree with the Cabelas choices, great starter equipment for a great price and most of the combos come fully equipped. Someone wrote about not giving up, that is the best statement a new fly fisherman should listen to. My advice is to go fish a native stream and just work on casting to easy feeding fish, but mostly it'll help build confidence and if you get the chance to fish with someone with a lot of experience, by all means do it! I fished with a guy that had been doing it for 20+ years a few years back and I learned so many little things that improved my abilities so much. Before long youre spinning gear will be nothing but dust collectors! 🏆
