Afish- no lack of gadgetry, huh?

Became aware of these types of things a week or 2 ago on the florida sportsman site. On that site, these types of things got mixed reviews.

I can see that it might be benefical if you lived on water where you could really get alot of use out of it and or practiced enough where you could become good at it.

Just don't think that standing up thing is for me- plus once you drop $3000 on the boat and accoutrements it starts to get prohibative. Plus the wind and tides are going to have a say if one will be able to stand anyway.

Again, if I lived on a canal or close by to the bays in Florida I would own a fishing kayak. I like being able to get around to spots-then getting out and wading.

Flyfishing goes on forever!
