Scotto is right, go to the Feather-Craft website and look at their furled leaders. While preparing for a trip to Idaho I bought one of their leaders for my 5wt. It performed so well that when I got back I promptly bought one for every rod I have. This was four years ago. I've messed-up and had to replace a couple fly lines since then but my original batch of Feather-Craft furled leaders are all still going strong. Like Scotto said they have a tiny silver ring on the tippet end. You just tie your tippet on to that. The ring is so tiny that it floats without a problem. I love them.
