
Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Chain Pickerel on the fly

Re: Chain Pickerel on the fly

Author: : osprey

Date: : 2009/12/15 5:45:39

URL:

YEP.....JayL is right about the clouser , they work great for chain pickerel , beleive it or not the special regs section of Clarks creek in Dauphin county used to have quite a few in there with all those trout , in recent years their numbers have dropped off but there still are a few , the last one i caught would have been around now , right before the Holidays , of 2006 , it was right above the special regs section , i saw him move first and sight cast a clouser to him and he grabbed it on the first pass , over the years i must have caught at least a few dozen from Clarks and i saw a kingfisher kill a small one once. The Clouser pattern i'd suggest would be natural brown and white , with gold tinsel wrapped to bend and a couple peices of christmas tree tinsel in there for flash.....HAPPY HUNTING