

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Whats your favorite Crayfish patern

Re: Whats your favorite Crayfish patern

Author: : osprey

Date: : 2009/12/21 15:29:20

URL:

That "rubbery" appearance the claws have on a natural that is scooting backwards is hard to imitate but the marabou comes pretty close. Thinkin about this i think there are two main scenarios i'm trying to imitate and two different flies to accomplish them. A crayfish in retreat is best imitated with the bugger type fly , A crayfish that has retreated and is in "hang" mode is best imitated with the clouser type , what do y'all think?