Just a little update for all who don't make it to these parts often (Laurel Highlands) They sure are throwing them up , since i last posted on this , there are dozens of new ones gone up along rt160 south into northern Maryland it looks like. There is also a new group now visible from rt30 , and what looks like a staging/storage facility also visible from rt30 , so far most of these seem to have been placed on what i think were old strip mines , to end i just , still don't see what all the fuss and protest is about. Oh yeah , there is another group of turbines near the town of Dunlo/Krayne also on old strip mines. What do y'all think?
