

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Chain Pickerel on the fly

Re: Chain Pickerel on the fly

Author: : fishpaint

Date: : 2009/12/27 12:55:46

URL:

Years ago (before boat)we used to wade the pocono lakes in early spring casting streamers to the pickerel in the shallows, a good way to start the season.

The Delaware canal in bucks county was loaded with them. You could spend the day walking the canal covering alot of ground and not being dissapointed. When they drained the canal and only about a foot or so of water was left we turned our attention to the carp that were left behind. Sightfishing for them was a blast, it was like fishing the flats. Eventually that dried up too, sad because it was only 25 minutes away.