Picking up my switch rod on Monday 🏠 Im gonna try and get a little casting practice in and I figured what better way than to hit up some musky water. From what I read musky tend to stay active throughout the winter in rivers and moving water. Im gonna watch the flows and maybe try out the lehigh river around where some of the spring creeks flow into it and there will be temperature differences. Let you all know how I make out but like I said, it will be more about casting practice for when I make it up to the salmon river.
