I agree with you ryanh about what our top concerns should be and that the environment may have to take a back seat at times. My biggest concern is that this administration is so easily distracted and continuously take their eye off the ball by focusing on undoing environmental policies (for their own personal interest) that are currently in place to protect the future of the environment. If they would focus that attention on the "bigger" issues that you pointed out then maybe our environment would be in a lot better shape.

One other thing...

You could kill all the brookies and all the cutthroats and anything else that you like but the sad fact of the matter is that there will never be any way to guarantee our families the safety they deserve from a terrorist attack. 😞

Have a happy and safe 4th of July.

GOD BLESS AMERICA!
