

Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : Foam Beetle

Re: Foam Beetle

Author: : thedude1534

Date: : 2007/7/18 13:45:52

URL:

I'll try tying the dropper on the eye next time I go out, or maybe take out the dropper all together to see if it makes a difference.

In terms of fish taking fly's quickly, I have been fishing the LLH almost exclusively for the last few weeks, and I have noticed that recently the fish are sipping rather than striking the beetle. I usually don't have problems with reflexes when it comes to setting the hook, but maybe the LLH browns are a tier above the rest. Can anyone else attest to the fact that LLH fish are hard to hook-up with?