I've never been the vest type of dude. Started off with an old school Orvis fanny pack with 3 sections around the waste.

I then moved to the chest pack, which I still miss sometimes, as it was small and comfortable, but still had a compartment in the back for carrying water/beer/vodka.

I've since moved solely to the wading jacket. You can't go wrong with these in the winter/early spring/fall.

Now, in the summer, I've been using the old fanny pack but down to one compartment, as all I really need is a leader and a box of dries with a spool of 5x mono.

this summer, I'm transitioning to the LANYARD for summer fishing... I just got out bided on ebay for one that would carry all necessities, so I'm still looking.
