Being in the late September/Early October of my years (or whatever us newly turned 58 year olds can be said to be), I'm beginning to realize that while the notion has some appeal, a lot of the satisfaction is dampened because the memory of this new freedom either is only retained briefly or it gets mixed up with the memory of where we put the mustard or Phillips head screwdriver. Or the fear that somehow, we left the phillips head screwdriver sticking out of the mustard jar.

Is today Thursday? I think it might be, but I'd better check to be sure..
