

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : Marcellus Shale Drilling

Re: Marcellus Shale Drilling

Author: : pcray1231

Date: : 2010/3/3 13:20:40

URL:

Quote:

Man! that is seriously on point.

Thanks. I've done a little research on the procedures through work, but they only apply to a limited range of the operation. And of course I have concerns as well, being a fisherman and outdoorsman, and generally being the type of guy who has to understand something completely before coming to a conclusion. But I can't say I've gone as far as you plan to yet. If its not too much to ask, fill me in on some of the things you find out. I've yet to read a qualified take on the subject from a non-biased observer.

There's also the "better of the evils" philosophy. If we want to have electricity on any sort of wide scale, its gotta be coal, gas, or nuclear. Those are the only current large-scale options. Nobody wants any of them in their backyard, but somebody's got to deal with them....