

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Not a stopped Question.

Re: Not a stopped Question.

Author: : jaybo41

Date: : 2007/7/24 21:18:49

URL:

Basically, I avoid anything cotton under my wading boots. Cotton absorbs water, and will make you cold in cold water and uncomfortable in warm weather. Anything that wicks, especially socks is key.

Lightweight, wicking, base layer in warm weather. In cold weather, I'll go with a medium weight set of pants, also wicking and if it's REAL cold like it can get here in PA or if I'm spending a lot of the day in the water, I'll go with fleece pants.

Best advice I can give you is to avoid cotton as the first layer on your skin.