

Subject: : Fly Fishing Events and Meet-ups

Topic: : 3/20/10 Lehigh Valley Tying/fishing "Mini Jam"

Re: 3/20/10 Lehigh Valley Tying/fishing "Mini Jam"

Author: : Heritage-Angler

Date: : 2010/3/7 10:29:16

URL:

Quote:

Upstream wrote:

What is the format of the morning session?

Should we bring our fly tying tools/materials?

Absolutely! There's only enough room for about 6 guys to tie at one time, but with three hours of tying time, we should be able to get everyone a chance to tie several flies to use later in the day.

So far, the majority of the people that say they're coming prefer to fish the Lehigh Valley, so the flies we'll be covering will be Baetis patterns (Got that Lefty?). If you only bring materials to tie Baetis imitations, it'll cut down on what you have to bring.

I suggest bringing a tying light if you can, as the light isn't the best in there for tying. Pedestal vises are recommended if you have one. The furniture in there is pretty fancy, so we've got to be careful with c-clamps and such.

This is gonna be a pretty unique tying class. It's the first I've ever heard of where you get to learn some new patterns, and then get the opportunity to learn how to fish them effectively right afterwards. It's also a rare day when you get to see Old Lefty tie more than one fly in a sitting. 😊

Just being able to learn how to tie Dave's patterns is....priceless.