AKid.....i always keep some kind of small container in my vest to store a few bugs in , lots of times i've been fishing and see activity of something i'm not familiar with so i scoop a few up and then do some research later to find out what they are , most times i have something in my arsenal that will do the trick as far as imitation and being able to fool a few fish but i like to know what they are so i'll take a few samples and put a name to them later.
