I have read there are three more dams to be removed from the Yellow Breeches creek. How closely related to conservation are the removal of these dams? How closely related to dangers of low head dams are the removal of these dams. I live in the area and fish the Yellow Breeches many times a year. In the past couple of years, there have been accidents and deaths related to the low head dams. According to the map <http://www.americanrivers.org/assets/.../yellow-breeches-dams.pdf> there are 24 dams. I am just curious what you think, removal of dams to support conservation or removal of dams for public safety?
