I completely agree with Jay, although I never switched back. I forced myself to learn and catch fish.

BTW, a true dead drift is extremely hard to master. What appears to be a dead drift, may not appear that way to the fish.

I have showed people the difference and not hooked or even persuaded a fish for ten cast, then show a true dead drift (or as close as I can get) and hooked up on the first one. I still constantly have to remind myself to not get lazy and work for that true dead drift.
