I'd say your original choice of flies was a good one. I'd try Jay's suggestion of a white streamer. I've found that fresh stocked fish really like white streamers. Were you getting your flies down deep? Oftentimes, this time of year, fish are right on the bottom and you need to get your flies down to 'em in the cold water. If you're not snagging the bottom or dredging up some weeds once and awhile (like every third cast or so) you might need some more weight.
