

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Fly selection...

Re: Fly selection...

Author: : PaulG

Date: : 2010/3/11 7:18:30

URL:

Quote:

sanctuary wrote:

White buggers. I'll try that. I tried black and olive.

It was freshly stocked with RB and browns. I figured it would be more fun to practice casting with some chance of pullage on the other end. I had been up to Stony and Clarks, but the fish wouldn't stop laughing at me.

Is Manada's DHALO a tough place to fish?

Sanctuary

I was out at Manada the other day, I fished less then an hour, didn't catch any. I have this bad cold right now and just felt to bad to stay.

The only thing tough about Manada is all the dead fall, most of the time your in and out of the water.

I did see some blk stoneflies while I was there, other things you might want to try are, streamers, attractor flies, adams, royal wulffs, stemulators, someone else will have to help you out with the nymphs. Give it a try, Im sure you'll like the stream!

PaulG