Usually with a dry/dropper, I tie to the bend.

Nymphs I tie to the eye or to the bend (50/50).

A true Czech nymphing rig is nice, but is pretty complicated, until you learn it.

I have also messed around with what I call "false loops." Basicall you create a knot in the leader, but if you pulled the tag end the leader would straighten with no know. However, if you tie in a tippet section at this "knot" the knot is kept from slipping out by the tippet. If you don't want that setup anymore, just cut the tippet and pull the leader straight.

But, to the bend is the easiest, and quicjest for me; probably because that's what I've done the most.
