My boat isn't in the 2010 catalog, but it's the same as the Skykomish - just shorter tubes (9'). You couldn't flip it on a lake if you wanted to. Wakes? Pfffft. Now if you were going bonzai down class 4 rapids, and hit a really big boulder, MAYBE you'd be able to flip it if you hit it broadside, but I've done it, and it just bounces off (scares the crap out of you, though).

I don't have the standing platform. It was worthless to me, and worth about half of what I paid for the boat to someone else. 😊

You can get different height seat pedestals, and some that swivel, if height means anything to you (seen 'em at Walmart, no less). That'll change the cg though. That 10' 5wt is the nuggets for fishing out of a 'toon.

Hidden Lake is closed to fishing from 4/1 to 4/17. It's a great place to try out a new boat - you can see the bottom almost everywhere, and it's not deep. You could probably wade across the darn thing. Of course, that ain't saying much. 🏠
