Maybe a stupid question but wouldnt Penn State also have courses on land management and erosion control?

Yes, PSU is planning on using only a small part of it for ag research. Much of it is to be used as a forestry and fisheries classrom. They plan to reforest much of it, remove invasive species, try to grow the American Chestnut, etc.

IMO, perhaps I'm with Troutbert that I'd rather see the game commission or DCNR get it. But even PSU would be a fine option, probably better than the status quo, which isn't all that bad itself.
