

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Fly Rod Selection for Beginners

Re: Fly Rod Selection for Beginners

Author: : bikerfish

Date: : 2010/3/25 7:02:37

URL:

quote

"Personally I like the way a slower action handles a larger trout on the line but would prefer a little faster action for casting and distance. So I guess I have to say a medium action is good for me. I still like the relaxed way a medium/slow action casts though. " one word, fiberglass. what you want is out there, check out steffen brothers, mcfarland, hardy, just to name a few. glass is not dead and these new glass rods might just offer what you are looking for. I have an 8ft 5wt mcfarland that is the smoothest thing I've ever cast, plenty of power to cast through some wind, yet a joy to play a nice fish with.