

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Dry Fly Fishing Tips

Re: Dry Fly Fishing Tips

Author: : pcray1231

Date: : 2010/3/31 8:46:13

URL:

Quote:

I'm going to assume that slower water is better for dries than fast water.

I'll echo Jay's comments here. Fish more often rise in slow water (and also shallower water). When they do rise there, its also easier to pick them out, that ring on the water is unmistakable, even from a distance. But its a lot harder to catch them. When dry fly fishing gets fun is when there's enough bugs to get the fish in the fast water rising actively. When that happens, game on.