Thats great as far as distance and accuracy. Try obstacles. Do it with a tree behind you, or between two bushes.

While thats pretty good, rarely when on the stream do you get to do it the same way. Plus, distance and accuracy are only parts of the equation, you'll find the drag free drift, mending, etc. more difficult. You need to go fishing to work on a lot of that, casting in the yard only does so much. Going fishing isn't such a bad thing, though.
