

Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : Humpinator recipe

Re: Humpinator recipe

Author: : Wulff-Man

Date: : 2007/8/1 13:20:56

URL:

Quote:

Fisherboy86 wrote:

I did not name it the humpulator because I thought the name would offend some people.

That never occurred to me when Jay first brought up the the likely genesis of the name, but now that you mentioned it, that's pretty funny. Even after you mentioned it, it took me a little while to get it, though.

And Jay, to answer your question, the only thing I can think of is that they're concerned that so many hoards of fly fishers will start using the fly that the fish will start to recognize it and it won't be as successful anymore. You know, like the Adams, Elk Hair Caddis, and Pheasant Tail Nymph. 🙄