I believe I know where you are talking about, and that's a good area, but just later in the year. The fish, mostly bows, will move into the riffles. the best part is no one ever fishes them and they are easier to catch.

Powey's curve, Trout Run Park, Camp Susque and by the Mill in Trout Run are you best bets this time of year. Forget the bridges up 14!

In between the popular spots you will find holdovers and the occassional wild brown. However, the fish are smarter and in less numbers. When I fish Lycoming these are the fish I go after. For this reading the water is key.

Thanks for the information! I may have to hit those spots up later this week or weekend. The fact that no one fishes back on McKee like you mentioned is why I was attracted to it, but after not seeing a single fish rise, I started to wonder :).

Have you ever fished around Perryville along Hoagland Run? That section is listed as an ATW on the PFBC site. That's also only about 5 minutes from me as well.
