Its amazing how badly I'm coming undone at this. I'm picking up plenty of takes, and I don't think its fish just bumping hte fly, but no matter how quickly or slowly I react, nothing.

Did you try attaching a hook to the fly? ;)

Seriously - most common issue with dry fly hooksets is being too quick (i'm a repeat offender on this one when i get too excited), but it could be a number of other things too (size and type of fly, angle of set, the fish gods hating you, etc).

I'd be happy to join you some evening as well to see what's up. Feel free to give me a yell.
