I was referring to the clean-up of the thing, sorry for the confusion. I agree the fix for the leak should be done very carefully. but along those lines, I think our government should be present, we have good people in the military and the corp of engineers, get them down there and let them assist.

as for the clean-up, let everyone who is willing to help do so. too many folks waiting for "approval" before acting. this is an emergency, screw the approval. what the hell do suits in washington know about this anyways, nothing! by the time they form a committee, do the research, explore the legal ramifications, and all the other bs they like to do, more and more of our gulf will be ruined.

this is a perfect example of whats wrong with our government. just today, heard the justice dept wants to start a criminal investigation. well that's great, in the meantime, hundreds of miles of shoreline and millions of wildlife will be dying. everyone wants to point the blame, then they can pat themselves on the back and say "we caught them"! maybe vote themselves another pay raise, because, yep, they earned it.

maybe there is an intense cleanup underway, but as of today, I haven't heard about it. only a few groups here and there doing what they can.

our government wants to meddle in everything else regarding our lives, where are they when something actually NEEDS done.

sorry, but I'm just not liking them right now. and no, I haven't been watching fox news!LOL
