

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Is this a tiger trout?

Re: Is this a tiger trout?

Author: : WildTigerTrout

Date: : 2010/6/20 11:32:46

URL:

That is a wild tiger trout. They are very rare in the wild but do occur where brook trout and brown trout have natural reproduction in the same stream. I have been fortunate and have caught three since I started flyfishing six years ago. The wild tigers I have caught have come from the same stream. I have a friend who has flyfished many more years than I and he has caught five in his lifetime. I guess many fisherman never catch one so we can consider ourselves lucky. The tigers I caught were 8.5 inches, 11 inches, and a monster 13.5 inches. The stream I caught them in shall remain nameless. I will say it is a unstocked limestoneer. I have also caught several stocked tigers a few years ago in another stream, however they do not compare to the beauty and color that god has given the wild fish. Those wild tigers are how I got my user name LOL. Congratulations!