

Subject: : Stream Reports

Topic: : Pohopoco Carbon County 06-24-2010

Re: Pohopoco Carbon County 06-24-2010

Author: : jdaddy

Date: : 2010/6/25 10:33:29

URL:

I was there on the 21st with Redsun from this forum. Caught mix of browns and bows. Caught a nice 18" brown at that lower dam above the bridge. There was some really nice browns hanging out in the slack water on the "other" side below that bridge. Water had reversing current making the drift all but impossible and the water was practically standing still, so they got too good of a look at everything I threw at them. jfetkin and I were there on Memorial day and the water levels were up quite a bit more and he tangled with those fish in that specific area a number of times.

That stocking association apparently had stocked the piss out of the Lehigh the week before at the Poho confluence. Not sure why as the Lehigh is too warm, even in the Poho confluence. I would like to go to one of the stocking associations meeting sometime to see if the general membership is reflective of the members I have meet on the stream. I wonder if the metal stringer hanging off the wading belt is standard issue? Seriously, I have meet some strange folks there.