Thanks everyone!

That is very helpful. Sounds like its time to get a thermometer for the vest. I love to get after trout but want to make sure I am responsible about it.

I have noticed some areas with fish beginning to stack up a bit and wondered what that was about (although I think these are stocked fish so I may have to do them a favor and cull the herd).

I have never really fished for SMB - was actually more of a spinning rod LMB fisherman before this year so I suppose I can turn over another new leaf for a few months and go after the smallies (and maybe even a few of those carp...)
