I just picked up some woolly Buggers and I have heard a lot of great things about them, but to be honest, how do you effectively use one of these? I imagine you would use this as a wet fly? Do you cast out and give small little jerks as you pull the fly back in, or am I completely out in left field with this? I am going to give it a shot this weekend, but I think I am going to try for warm water species rather than trout.
