Yeah, they take water from surface water sources. Supposed to be a permit system, in the Ohio drainage I think the DEP handles the permits. In a stream that big, I don't know that it matters, but in smaller streams I'd like to know whether there are flow restrictions on when they're allowed to withdraw water.

I see nothing illegal, except the threat to take your camera. Troutbert is right, they have no right to even threaten you about it.
